

Include me in the list of airline passengers who most strongly disapprove of cell phone use while flying. The thought of callers trying to shout each other is horrifying. A cell phone user in the adjacent seat is as annoying as a crying baby. If phone calls were truly necessary, callers would be using the seat back phones regardless of the cost.